

During COVID-19, the new normal is 'business-as-virtual'. While many companies may have already had online stores, this transition to virtual business doesn't come without learning curves for some. Local businesses are here to help you get your business online. If you're looking to go digital, the London Economic Development Corporation (LEDC) has developed a guide to many London businesses offering eCommerce, website development, and marketing services to help your company ramp up its online presence. Explore the list below and check the website links below for any COVID-19 related incentives they may be offering.
