

Sunwing and Air Transat return to London, Ontario for the 2022-2023 winter season

Plan your winter escape from the easy and comfortable airport direct to sun destinations with all-inclusive resort options.

LONDON, ON – Residents of southwestern Ontario will be able to plan their winter vacations again with ease by flying directly out of London International Airport. Both Sunwing and Air Transat have announced their return to London this winter. Starting December 14, 2022, until April 13, 2023, the charter airlines will be offering weekly flights to the popular vacation destinations of Cancun, Punta Cana and Varadero.

“We are very much looking forward to the return of Sunwing and Air Transat flights this winter to the sunny southern destinations.” Said Scott McFadzean, President and CEO of London International Airport. “Direct flight to sun destinations have been very popular in past and after 2 long winters restricted by COVID-19, we look forward to providing options again to our travelling guests. Flying direct from London takes a lot of the stress out of travel and provides an easy and comfortable flight experience, saving both time and money.”

The flight schedule between London and sun destinations will be as follows:
